Legal and strategic advice to the sports world

ABOUT ME

My name is Lars Halgreen and over the past 25 years I have rendered legal advice on international sports law matters to sports federations, clubs, athletes, players and sponsors and has thus a unique insight into the legal framework of sport both in Denmark, the EU and the USA.

I have a vast experience adjudicating legal matters in sports, as I have participated in almost 100 cases as an arbitrator in the Court of Arbitration for Sport (CAS) in Lausanne, Switzerland since 2004. As the first scholar in the Nordic countries, I wrote in 2003 a PhD thesis comparing the European Model of Sport with the American Sport system.

Over the years, I have been the author of many books and articles on sports law issues, and I have for 20 years been teaching Danish and International Sport law in Denmark and abroad.

For 25 years I have been married to my wife, Birgitte. We have two adult children and our black Labrador, Jackson (who is the third child of the family).

If you are in need of expert advice or sparring on any sports law matter in an increasingly more complex world of sport, where the rules are both national, regional and global, please contact me. I will also be able to facilitate contact to excellent colleagues and arbitrators throughout Europe and the USA.
